Alexis T. Harvey, president; Allen Y. Harvey, vice-president and treasurer; and Hervey L. Lloyd, secretary. Though never an aspirant for official preferment, he is a staunch supporter of the cause of the Democratic party, fraternally identified with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and both he and his wife hold membership in the First Baptist church. On Dec. 17, 1899, was witnessed the marriage of Mr. Harvey to Miss Jessie May Malone, daughter of A. W. and Janie S. (Spinks) Malone, of Meridian, and of this union has been born one child—Elizabeth.

Harwell, James D., tax collector for the city of Meridian and one of the well known and honored citizens of Lauderdale county, is a scion of one of the families early founded in the patrician Old Dominion, of which he himself is a native son. He was born in Petersburg, Dinwiddie county, Va., Feb. 12, 1844, and is a son of William T. and Emma C. (Butts) Harwell, both of whom were likewise born and reared in Virginia. The father devoted his life to agricultural pursuits, having been a successful planter in Virginia at the time of his death, which occurred in 1847. He was a son of Thomas G. Harwell, who also was born in Virginia, where the original ancestors, of English birth, located in the early colonial era. In 1850, when six years of age, James D. Harwell accompanied his widowed mother on her removal from Virginia to Greensboro, Ala. In 1852 the mother again married and they later removed to Sumter county, that State, where he was reared to maturity, receiving a good common school education. Upon the outbreak of the Civil war he entered the Confederate ranks, enlisting in Company I, Twentieth Alabama infantry, which became a part of the Army of Tennessee, and he took part in the engagements at Port Gibson and Edwards Station, the siege of Vicksburg, where he was captured, being held as a prisoner until the autumn of 1863, when he was exchanged, thereafter taking part in the battles of Missionary Ridge, Lookout Mountain, the campaign from Dalton to Atlanta, Ga., taking part in the battles of Jonesboro, Franklin, Nashville and Columbia, and remaining in service until the close of the war, while he was several times wounded while in action. After the close of his valiant and faithful military career, Mr. Harwell returned to Sumter county, Ala., where he remained until 1872, when he came to Lauderdale county, Miss., having made his home in Meridian during the major portion of the intervening time. He was engaged in bookkeeping as a vocation for many years, and in 1896 he was appointed deputy sheriff of the county, retaining this incumbency for seven years, at the expiration of which, in August, 1904, he was elected tax collector of Meridian, for a term of four years. To the duties of this office he now gives his attention, while he has long been a stalwart in the camp of the local Democracy. He is identified with the local organization of the United Confederate Veterans, and with the Masonic fraternity, while both he and his wife hold membership in the Presbyterian church. In 1870 Mr. Harwell was married to Miss Anna T. Smith, daughter of William H. A. Smith, of Alabama, and she died in 1893, being survived by eight children, six of whom are now living—James M., who resides in Meridian; Florence, who lives at home; Herbert N., of Meridian; William M., of Meridian; Emma, now deceased; Betty J., now the wife of E. F. Bartlett, of Laurel, Miss.; John A., at school, and William D., who died in infancy. In April, 1894, Mr. Harwell married Miss Mary M. Friend, of Mobile, Ala., and she presides graciously in their pleasant home.

Hathorn, Claude Vernon, chancery clerk of the newly organized county of Lamar, is one of the popular young men of Purvis, and is prominently identified with local interests of important order, having served as president of the Lamar County bank and secretary and treasurer of the Purvis Light and Power Company. Mr. Hathorn has passed his entire life thus far in the fair old State of Mississippi, having been born in Covington county, Sept. 27, 1875, and being a son of Nevill C. and Susie (Cooper) Hathorn, the former of whom was born in Covington county and the latter in Lawrence county, this State, showing that the respective families have been identified with the history of the commonwealth from the pioneer epoch. Mr. Hathorn completed the curriculum of the public schools, including a course in the high school at Columbia, Marion county. In 1897, at the age of twenty-two years, he was appointed deputy chancery clerk of Marion county, remaining incumbent of this office seven years. He took up his residence in the town of Purvis in 1897, this being the second district of Marion county, and is now the judicial center of the newly organized county of Lamar, and in 1904 he was elected chancery clerk of the county, in which capacity he is still serving. In April, 1904, he was one of those primarily concerned in the organization of the Lamar County bank, which is capitalized for $15,000, and was made president of that institution, while he directed its administration with mature judgment, so that it is numbered among the solid banking houses of the State and has a strong supporting patronage. He was instrumental in the organization of the Purvis Light and Power Company, of which he was made secretary and treasurer. His influence and aid are exerted in the support of all undertakings and enterprises which have for their objects the upbuilding of the city and county and the conservation of the general welfare of the community. Politically Mr. Hathorn is uncompromising in his allegiance to the Democracy as represented in its basic principles and policies, and he is identified with the Masonic fraternity and the Knights of Pythias. On May 15, 1901, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Hathorn to Miss Bessie Manar, daughter of William D. and Annie (Barber) Manar, of Purvis, and of this union two children were

MATINEE MUSICAL CLUB HOLDS MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR MRS. HARWELL

The memorial service held the Matinee Musical Club Thursday evening at the School of Music in memory of Mrs. Nellie Emerson Harwell was a most impressive and beautiful service.

The beautiful songs, and the piano and violin music were but feeble expressions of the love still cherished in the hearts of the members of the club for that one who for years was president of the club and whose guiding hand and wise counsel have been missed during the past months.

Miss Maryanne Houston sang, "He Giveth His Beloved Sleep," Misses Mattie Sue Tarry and M. L. Foxthress gave a violin duet, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," and Miss Smith of Lauderdale played Mrs. Harwell's favorite piano composition, "Libestrat," by Liszt.

At the conclusion of the program Dr. Abram Brill eloquently spoke the address of the evening, an appreciation of the work of Mrs. Harwell, which is given below:

O, blessed life of service and of love, full of such duties as God's angels know, O faithful heart that recked not care or pain when duty called thee or when love did lead, we long shall miss thee as we go our ways, a saddened home shall long miss thee from its broken band, many a tear doth tell thy sober praise and all good works new miss thy helping hand—such might, I said to express the sentiments of all who knew and loved the lamented former president of the Matinee Musical Club, Mrs. Harwell, and whose heart is pulsating at this time in aid and tender union to the mournful measures of this memorial hour.

The busy and eventful days and weeks have come and gone since "the angel with the unseen sword" entered our midst and down in the very prime of her beautiful womanhood, one who was a dear friend to us all, one who has been sorely missed in every avenue of her beneficent activity, one who is lovingly, gratefully remembered by all who were privileged to come within the magic circle of her sweet and gracious influence, and now at the end of this swift-flying half a year since her gentle spirit was wafted home to heaven, while asking ourselves, why mourn and grieve for one whom we know God has but transplanted as a rare flower to grace the heavenly garden, into a realm where the light of unending bliss is her well-merited portion forever, yet who can help longing "for the touch of a vanished hand, and the sound of a voice that is still." For as the poet has so pathetically expressed the thought:

We miss them so,
The ones that go—
Try as we may Through grief to say,
"Ah, well, 'tis best—"

Just now, cry,
To bravely tread
Our way alone,
The loved ones dead,
The sweet ones flown, Rise in the memory and we say
"Father, bring them back today!
We miss them so."

The loved ones that go!
O'er the dear dust of those who sleep, Day after day, we seem to hear, Loved voices falling soft and clear,
And how can we help it but weep.
Mine is the sacred and tender task of voicing for the friends and members of the Meridian Matinee Musical Club their loving tribute to the memory of Nellie Emerson Harwell, and of placing a few scattering flowers of friendship's devotion upon the cherished recollection of one whose beauty and sweetness rise like holy incense in the solemn hour.
Nellie Emerson Harwell was a noble soul "of purest ray serene," in her gladness she held the jewels that will shine on to eternity. Her instincts, the lovable and laudable were, quiet and strong, her sympathies were broad and generous and tolerant, she possessed a never-failing energy and she followed untiringly the promptings of genial, whole-hearted, tender-hearted and devoted spirit. "The law of kindness was on her tongue." She loved to do good, to make others happy.
Nothing was too arduous for her to undertake. Everything of advantage or benefit to her city, her state, her country, her fellowmen and her own sex engaged her ready sympathy and active support so far as lay in her power.
Every good public movement found in her an ardent and enthusiastic helper.
It was while she was throwing her whole heart and soul into the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign, earnestly striving to do her part in this noble patriotic work as indeed she had done in every national and local drive, that she exposed herself to the dread pestilence and sacrificed her precious life as nobly, as sublimely, as selflessly as the American soldier fighting in the front ranks against the enemy laid down his life for his country's sake, dying a hero, a martyr to freedom, enveloped with lasting glory. So did this friend of heroine by the self-same token, worthy to be lasting, gratefully remembered.

We know her as a friend whose bright and cheery disposition and unquenchable optimism so pervaded the atmosphere wherever she was that we went forth from her society with lighter step and purer vision, more than ever appreciative of the wondrous gift of life, knowing how she loved life not for selfish purposes but as a means and an opportunity for usefulness and service.
Her sublime faith in the great Father and her faith in her fellowman gave her a joyousness of heart that was irresistible and all-pervading, and if she made the most watchful and loving of mothers, and we lovingly remember her for this simple, domesticated womanliness of her was not the least part of her many-aided perfection.

But finally we would place upon her name the wreath of our gratitude for her service to the sacred cause of music. As she loved the very song of the birds and every breeze carried to her the melodious whispers of the divine life, and as music was to her the very rhythm of her being, so it was only natural that she should devote her energy unrelentingly toward the great goal of making Meridian the musical center of the entire state and to make the state stand for much in the entire musical world. Certainly the enthusiasm for which she was so well known could not but result in creating and fostering and encouraging in our city the finest musical atmosphere to be found in these United States in any city of the size and rank of Meridian, and she found a ready and fertile soil for her efforts among the large coterie of talented musicians with which our city is so fortunately supplied. Her example was contagious, and her success was proportionate to the large number of earnest co-laborers. What more beautiful tribute could the members of the Matinee Musical Club pay to the memory of this beloved pioneer, pathfinder and co-worker in the holy vineyard of music in Meridian, than to strive to emulate her enthusiastic spirit and fine example by continuing and perpetuating the noble work she inaugurated or encouraged here in our midst in the sacred cause of divine harmony and music's blissful domination.

Nellie Emerson Harwell even in death still lives in spirit, in vital influence and in praiseworthy example. While her soul has winged its flight to the brighter realms and she has joined "the choir invisible of those immortal dead who live again in minds made better by their presence, in pulses stirred to generosity, in thoughts sublime that pierce the night like stars and by their mild persistence urge man's search to vaster issues, so to live in Heaven to make undying music in the world," we may well find comfort in the thought that God suffered one of His angels to sojourn with us even for so brief a time and that although He has summoned her home, she has left behind her a trail of light which shall be a luminous inspiration for all time to all who knew and loved her. Thus,

"Memory, that tuneful bell that ringeth on forever,
That pens which echoes to the heavens,
And tells the world of immortality,
That they who come to mourn, may check their tears,
And say, why do we weep? She liveth still."

And tells the world of immortality,

Harwell, wife of Mr. J. M. Harwell, who died Sunday night at 8:45 at the family residence, 3808 Eighth street, was held yesterday afternoon at Rose hill cemetery, all services being held at the graveside because of the epidemic of influenza prevailing in the city. The large number of sorrowing friends who attended and the profusion of beautiful floral offerings attested to the popularity of this charming young wife and mother, loved musician, Christian and social worker, whose untimely death was a shock to the entire community and the state at large where she was so well known among club women.

The ministers in charge were the Rev. D. L. Burr, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, R. J. Bateman, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Rabbi Brill of Temple Beth Israel, and W. J. Ferguson, pastor of Fifth Street Methodist church. To tribute paid the life and character of deceased by Dr.
Brill was one of the most eloquent ever listened to by those present. The singing was by the members of the Matinee Musical Club of which Mrs. Harwell was the beloved president for a number of years. The selections were:
"Nearer, My God To Thee," "Abide With Me," and as the beautiful casket was lowered bearing its precious burden for the eternal sleep, the low sweet strains of "All Through the Night," were heard.

Not lately has Meridian been so deeply shocked at a death. Mrs. Harwell was a leader among women, and never anything of import came before Meridian when she was not called upon to take a leading part. She has been prominent in the war drives and was of the Liberty Loan teams. One of her last public works was to introduce Miss Ridgway, a Liberty loan speaker appearing here about three weeks ago.

Mrs. Harwell occupied a prominent position in the music world. She was chairman of the public school music clubs, was the first president of the Mississippi Federation of Music clubs, and at the time of her death was chairman of the music committee of this organization. For several years she served as president of the Matinee Musical club of this city, and in this position, did much to advance the club bringing it rapidly forward in the south as a club of note.

Mrs. Harwell was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Emerson of Pachita and Meridian, and was a native of Boston, coming south when a mere child. She was married to James M. Harwell of this city September 7, 1904. From this marriage three children were born, James Emerson the son who survives, Julian Worthington who died several years ago, and John Harold an infant who was born last week and lived but a brief time.

The husband and son, mother, and father, are left to mourn her.

The honorary pall bearers were:
Messrs. C. C. Dunn, Marks Rothenberg, A. H. George, Will Perry, Jr., Tom Lyle, Frank Williams, Geo. B. Neville, Kutcher Threftoot.

The active pall bearers were Messrs. W. A. Lyster, A. B. Weddington, Frank Gowder, J. W. Waldrop, E. H.
Hart, J. B. Ramsey, Marvin Cooper, J.
E. Holland, A. D. Simpson and J. C. Lister.

NELL HARWELL

To Nell Harwell, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Harwell, of Meridian, was given the honor of opening the 22nd annual convention of the Mississippi Federation of Music Clubs here last week.

This was done in tribute to the late Mrs. J. D. Harwell, grandmother of the little miss, who was the organizer and first president of the federation which was formed here in 1916.

Nell, a talented little singer, sang a song to the memory of her grandmother. Like Mrs. Harwell, she is unusually gifted and is a pupil of Mrs. S. D. McWilliam, director of music at the Oakley Heights school. The little girl won many musical honors and her teacher predicts a brilliant future for her as a pianist.

JUDGE EMERSON HARWELL

Rites Planned Tuesday For County Judge

Funeral services for Lauderdale County Judge J. Emerson Harwell, 64, are set for 10 a. m. Tuesday at Webb Funeral Home Chapel with burial in Rose Hill Cemetery.

Judge Harwell, a Meridian native who practiced law here since 1936, was dead on arrival at Anderson Hospital about 9:45 p. m. Sunday after suffering an apparent heart attack at his home at 1726 26th Ave.

Judge Harwell was serving his eighth year as county judge and was unopposed for reelection both in the Democratic primary in June and the general election slated for November.

The judge also worked as a telegrapher for over 30 years after starting at the age of 15 and served as telegrapher for the Meridian rail terminal. He attended law school at Loyola University in New Orleans while working as a telegrapher during the day. He later studied and passed the Mississippi State Bar examination.

Harwell's father, James Maury Harwell, served as a state representative from Lauderdale County in the 1910s and practiced law in Meridian, and his grandfather, James Daniel Harwell served as Meridian City Tax Collector.

ROUND-ABOUT MERIDIAN

(By W. B. Grauel of Star Staff)

This department today honors the memory of James D. Harwell, who was tax collector of the city of Meridian from 1904 to 1912. Mr. Harwell, who died Aug.

12, 1930, was the grandfather of J. Emerson Harwell, Meridian attorney, the latter the son of the late James M. Harwell. Two children survive the former city tax collector, being Mrs. E. F. Bartlett, of Laurel, and John A. Harwell, of Pachuta, and another grandson is Herbert T. Harwell, of Meridian, son of the late W. M. Harwell.

Mr. Harwell was one of the best known and honored citizens of Meridian, scion of one of the families early founded in Virginia, he himself being a native son of the Old Dominion state.

He was born in Petersburg, Dinwiddie county, Va., Feb. 12, 1844, the son of William T. and Emma C. (Butts) Harwell, both of whom were likewise born and reared in Virginia.

His mother moved to Alabama in 1850, locating in Sumter county. Upon the outbreak of the Civil War, Mr. Harwell entered the Confederate ranks, enlisting in Company I, Twentieth Alabama Infantry, which became a part of the Army of Tennessee. He was several times wounded in action and took part in many of the major engagements. He located in Meridian in 1872 and in 1896 was appointed deputy sheriff.

He was elected city tax collector several times, retiring when the commission form of government became effective. He wrote an excellent hand and many records at the city hall are testimonial to his penmanship. He was married in 1870 to Miss Anna T. Smith, daughter of William H. A. Smith, of Alabama, they being the parents of eight children. His wife died in 1893. In April 1894, Mr. Harwell married Miss Mary M. Friend, of Mobile, Ala., who died in 1932.

There he was attacked by a party of Roman Catholics, and he, his wife, and oldest son was slain.

Matinee Musical Club's Extension Work For Next Year.

Among the many plans made by the Matinee Musical Club for next year along extension lines, is the matter of a reciprocity committee who will arrange programs that will be exchanged with other clubs of the state. This means an exchange of talent as well as the programs themselves. Also the matter of exchange year books is being considered. Several towns have been written to and they express themselves as pleased with the plan. It is not a local thought by any means, but is in accord with altruistic suggestion sent out by the general federation. This work will be launched in the fall. Miss Eunice Harris is chairman of this committee and acting with her are Miss Terry Moore, Mrs. Fredric Schaefer, Mrs. T. W. Turner and Mrs. R. N. Poindexter.

The club will have open house the first meeting in each month at which time, one other of the federated clubs will be invited to be present. There is much enthusiasm over the prospect of having as one of the programs, the opera "Fairyland," composed by Horatio Parker, which won the $10,000 prize at the exposition.

This opera contains a beautiful duet for soprano voices, and other arrangements of voices that will please. Mr. Parker has written that he is pleased that the club will use the opera, and offers to make any suggestions toward making the program here a success. The year's theme will be "The Modern American Composer," and among the programs will be one entitled, "Mississippi Composers," which will include some of Meridian's talent in this line. The Matinee Musical is planning big things and the musical world is looking forward with pleasure to their offerings within the club as well as the outside attractions that have become a factor here in this way.

MAGNIFICENT PROGRAMS OF THE MATINEE MUSICAL CLUB

The Matinee musicians, generally have been much interested in the programs arranged for the Matinee Musical club work this season by the program committee; the following ladies forming the committee are: Mrs. Bertha Rosenbaum Grant, chairman; Mrs. S. H. Hairston, Mrs. E. H. Hart and Mrs. F. H. Griggs. These ladies, inspired by patriotic sentiments selected American compositions entirely for the year's work, even the musical quotations are taken from American writers.

Beautiful programs have been given concerning such subjects as folk music, A Day With Nature, etc., and such composers as McDowell and Chadwick. Some splendid papers have been written by Mrs. Malone, Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Seale, these being exceptionally well read and containing such matter as to inspire and uplift those who heard them.

The active members now numbering 60 have interested themselves exceedingly to make the splendid artist course for this season a complete success in every way and the associate members have been increasing in attendance at the regular meetings thus showing a genuine and sincere interest in the club affairs. Mrs. Harwell, the efficient and splendid president of the club, and whose illness at the beginning of the season caused the club members much concern, has now returned with all of her energy to her post and continues to inspire and lead the forces of the Matinee club "onward and upward." She has inaugurated some unexpected musical treats for each meeting during the remainder of the season so that the members can taste the joys of anticipation as well as those of realization.

DeLoach and Ireland played two movements of the Liszt E flat Concerto in such a way as to elicit sincere and unbounded applause. Mrs. H. F. Stevenson of Jackson, one of the club's former active members, gave much pleasure by her presence and by her singing.

The next regular meeting will be on December 16th, when a splendid holiday program will be rendered by some of the club's best performers.

The opening verse for the program should be the thought of every true musician,

"Lord, might we but responsive be,
To each dear touch of Thine, Our lives and anthems unto Thee, With theme and time divine."

MATINEE MUSICAL CLUB HC BUSINESS MEETING AND ELECTIONS OFFICERS.

At a business meeting held yesterday at the School of Music by Matinee Musical club, the annual election of officers took place, and many of them were re-elected. Much gratification was felt over the election of Mrs. J. M. Harwell as president, for her club workers and associates recognize in her a powerful executive officer. It was decided to increase the active membership from forty to sixty. Much other important business was transacted.

The officers for the ensuing year are: Mrs. J. M. Harwell, president; Miss Eunice Harris, vice president; Miss Mary Lou Moody, recording secretary; Miss Helen Crooks, corresponding secretary for club and national federation work; Miss Robel McRaven, treasurer; Mrs. Frank Well, historian.

Program committee: Miss Bertha Rosenbaum, chairman; Mrs. E. H. Hart, Mrs. S. H. Hairston, Miss Nicholas, Mrs. Frank Griggs.

Passed Away Sunday Night

At 8:45 o'clock, Sunday night, death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Harwell, 3608 Eighth street, and claimed the wife and mother there. Surrounded by husband, son, mother and father, this lovely woman breathed her last on earth, leaving besides these, hosts of friends who will deeply mourn her death. Nellie Emerson Harwell was stricken one week ago Sunday with influenza. Due to complications, the physicians, nurses and loved ones were apprehensive from the first regarding her condition. She grew rapidly worse toward the latter part of the week, and all Saturday and until the end, grew very weak, lapsed into a comatose condition and life passed out as softly as the brush of a soft wind.

The funeral services, will be held at 4:30 o'clock this (Monday) afternoon, and on account of the influenza orders, friends are asked to attend at the grave at Rosehill where the service will be held.

The ministers in charge will be the Rev. D. L. Barr, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Dr. R. J. Bateman, pastor of the First Baptist church, Rabbi Brill of the Temple Beth Israel, and the Rev. W. J. Ferguson of the Fifth Street Methodist church.

Not lately has Meridian been so deeply shocked at a death. Mrs. Harwell was a leader among women, and never anything of import came before Meridian when she was not called upon to take a leading part. She has been prominent in the war drives, and was taking a great part as captain of one of the Liberty Loan teams. One of her last public works was to introduce Miss Ridgway, a Liberty loan speaker appearing here about three weeks ago.

Mrs. Harwell occupied a prominent position in the music world. She was chairman of the public school music of the National Federation of Music clubs, was the first president of the Mississippi Federation of Music clubs, and at the time of her death was chairman of the music committee of this organization. For several years she served as president of the Matinee Musical club of this city, and in this position, did much to advance the club bringing it rapidly forward in the south as a club of note.

Mrs. Harwell was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Emerson of Pachuta and Meridian, and was a native of Boston, coming south when a mere child. She was married to James M. Harwell of this city September 7, 1904. From this marriage three children were born, James Emerson the son who survives, Julian Worthington who died several years ago, and John Harold an infant who was born last week and lived but a brief time.

The husband and son, mother, and father, are left to mourn her.

The honorary pall bearers will be: Messrs. C. C. Dunn, Marks Rothenberg, A. H. George, Will Perry, Jr., Tom Lyle, Frank Williams, Geo. B. Neville, Kutcher Threefoot.

The active pall bearers will be Messrs. W. A. Lysterly, A. B. Weddington, Frank Gowdey, J. W. Waldrop, E. H. Hart, J. B. Ramsey, Marvin Cooper, J. B. Holland, A. D. Simpson and Lester Dowling.

The funeral of Mrs. Nellie Emerson Harwell, wife of Mr. J. M. Harwell, who died Sunday night at 8:45 at the family residence, 3608 Eighth street, was held yesterday afternoon at Rose Hill cemetery, all services being held at the graveside because of the epidemic of influenza prevailing in the city. The large number of sorrowing friends who attended and the profusion of beautiful floral offerings attested to the popularity of this charming young wife and mother, loved musician, Christian and social worker, whose untimely death was a shock to the entire community and the state at large where she was so well known among club women.

The ministers in charge were the Revs. D. L. Barr, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, R. J. Bateman, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Rabbi Brill of Temple Beth Israel and W. J. Ferguson, pastor of Fifth Street Methodist church. To tribute paid the life and character of deceased by Dr. Brill was one of the most eloquent ever listened to by those present. The singing was by the members of the Matinee Musical Club of which Mrs. Harwell was the beloved president for a number of years. The selections were: "Nearer, My God To Thee," "Abide With Me," and as the beautiful casket was lowered bearing its precious burden for the eternal sleep, the low sweet strains of "All Through the Night," were heard.

IN AND AROUND MERIDIAN

Meridian has produced many beautiful-cultured women and among them was the late Mrs. Phil Weidmann and the late Mrs. J. M. Harwell. In the days when the late Phil Weidmann, generally regarded as one of the finest restaurateurs in Mississippi history, held forth on Fifth street just west of Lamar Robinson's Mrs. Weidmann proved herself a brilliant hostess. She met people, all kinds, easily and in good sense. Mrs. Harwell throughout her Meridian years was associated with the theme of making our town more attractive and this she helped to do, wisely and well. To recall her, you must also recall a red, red rose . . . The late Will Cunningham, long since gone to his reward, still lives in the hearts of men who as mere kids saw their first professional baseball games because of his kindness. Ten up to 50, it made no difference to him. If they went and into their hearts went a love for him. Believe it or not, weather in Meridian has been above the normal for the past two consecutive winters and this one in 1950 appears to hold the same condition. Is our weather getting warmer each year? Some of the old-timers seem to believe so. What do you think?

Mrs. J. M. HARWELL.

Through the splendid efforts of the Matinee Musical club, and under the magnificent leadership and marshalling of Mrs. J. M. Harwell, president of the club, all musical Meridian will array themselves in finest voice next week and will endeavor to offer music lovers a rare treat.

FESTIVAL.

Tomorrow, great preparations will be in order to perfect the plans for Meridian's second musical festival, under the auspices of the Matinee Musical club.

Parties are expected early in the week from several nearby towns. Mrs. O. T. Harper, directress of music at Cooper Institute, Daleville, Miss., has written that she expects to bring a party. She has evidenced a great deal of interest in the festival, as has Miss Hurst, voice teacher at the A. N. C., Livingston, who is also expected to attend with some pupils and friends. Meridian people should take quite a lot of pride in the festival, especially in the entertainments our local talent will present.

Nothing could be sweeter and more inspiring than the children's "Fairy Festival," composed of 300 of our brightest boys and girls, with their fresh, pure voices, and bright, happy faces. This matinee performance is sure to arouse a great deal of interest and enthusiasm.

On Wednesday night the Harmony club, composed of prominent singers, will appear in a splendid concert taken from the grand opera composers. Mr. John Wilson, the popular and talented president of the Harmony club, is very enthusiastic of the prospect for a fine performance on this occasion.

The rehearsals have been splendidly attended and the chorus is particularly fine, especially in the prayer from "Cavalliera." This will be presented as in the opera, with the church scene setting, with the internal chorus and organ behind the scenes.

This is a most magnificent chorus and will be the closing number Wednesday night.

The Harmony club is very strong this season, both as to quantity and quality. Mr. J. B. Gressett, the musical director, has been an inspiration to those under his baton, and this performance is expected to be anything but amateurish.

The Meridian Choral club, on Thursday, will present one of the most beautiful and difficult cantatas, the "Sleeping Beauty," by Cowen, under Mr. Lundberg's efficient direction. This is confidently expected to be something of unusual worth, as the Meridian Choral club has worked very conscientiously so as to give the cantata in appropriate style. A number of fine singers are connected with this organization.

Meridian should pride herself upon her local talent. Practically all of her best musical talent will be in evidence next week, and every one should take pride enough in our beautiful and progressive city to attend as many of the festival entertainments as possible.

The Matinee Musical club has become a most important factor in the making and culture for our community, and those who stand for refinement and taste should rally to its support. Mrs. J. M. Harwell, the enthusiastic president, and her competent committees have been working day and night to make the festival a success and their efforts deserve to be crowned with success. Of course it goes without saying that "everybody" will be at the matinee and evening performances of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra. People who aspire to the highest in life cannot well afford to ignore such a feast of soul as will be spread for our people on Friday afternoon and night by the Symphony orchestra and its soloists, of the
